President Approves Measure, Giving Out Statement in Defence of Course.

DEALS WITH OBJECTIONS
WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—President Taft signed the Panama Canal bill a few minutes after 7 o'clock to-night. Concurrent with his signature he gave out a lengthy statement reviewing the objections which have been made against the bill at home and abroad, and in which he takes distinct issue with the position of Great Britain. In part the President says:

First, the bill is objected to because it is said to violate the Hay-Panama treaty in discriminating in favor of the coastwise trade of the United States, by providing that no tolls shall be charged to vessels engaged in that trade passing through the canal. This is the subject of a protest by the British Government.

The matter of tolls. The British protest involves the right of the Congress of the United States to regulate the commerce and foreign commerce in such manner as to the Congress may seem wise, and especially the power to challenge the right of the Congress to exempt American shipping from the payment of tolls for the use of the Panama canal, or to refund to such American ships the tolls which they may have paid, and this without regard to the trade in which such ships are engaged, whether coastwise or foreign.

Mrs. F. H. Seely Still Believes Quadruplet
Girls Are But Twins

Real News Would Be Too Great a Shock to Mother, Say Doctors.

Mrs. Frank H. Seely of Dorchester, mother of the famous girl, quadruplets born July 20, has seen all four babies, but still thinks there are only two of them. They have been brought in to the mother in pairs and she believes they are all the same pair.

The living mother has actually nursed all four children while thinking she has only nursed twins.

This remarkable and most interesting deception is justified by the fact that the information that she is the mother of four girls instead of two should be too great a shock for Mrs. Seely to receive.

It was reported a few days ago that Mrs. Seely had been told of the fact of the "quads." This is not so. She has been told that she has twins and has been told that she has quadruplets.

Another fact about the "quads" is one which will please the public particularly—that both mother and children are doing well.

Mrs. Seely is expected to return home from Berneville Cottage Hospital next day.

And the "quads" are growing so that they have to take one out of the hospital for two or three days in relation to the other three.

ARRESTED MAN
AT HOTEL TOURNAINE
FOR DEATH TRAIT

J. L. Haddie of Weymouth Accused by Brother-in-Law, Dr. L. F. Wolfe.

TRAPPED IN PHONE BOOTH.

JAMES L. HADDIE of Weymouth, a stiverware salesman employed at Boston, who married Miss Eleanor Bakeman of Dorchester about eighteen months ago, was arrested in the lobby of the Hotel Tournaine yesterday noon while his brother-in-law Dr. Leonard F. Wolfe, a North Weymouth physician, was waiting for him in conversation on the telephone at the Boston police could get him.

Dr. Wolfe and George W. Nash, of the Weymouth police say that Haddie had been making threats to shoot them.

A warrant is in the hands of the Weymouth police for Haddie's arrest on a charge of assault and battery on his wife. The effort of Dr. Wolfe and Patrolman Nash to assist Mrs. Haddie, they say, had caused Haddie.

At the Langens street station a new City's automatic revolver, loaded with a new box of cartridges, was found on Haddie. He was looked for carrying a loaded revolver.

Arrested in Booth. Haddie, after telephoning that he was going to shoot the doctor, daily talked more amiably and wanted Dr. Wolfe to meet him in the Tournaine of noon. Dr. Wolfe said he would, but told Haddie he would also telephone his wife.

Patrolman Nash, then, wanted to limit police by telephone. At noon Dr. Wolfe put in a long-distance call to the Tournaine for Haddie and had the latter on the wire when Patrolman Nash, who was in the lobby, arrested Haddie.

Haddie was twenty-eight years old, living on Canal street, Weymouth. With his wife and six-month-old baby he has been living with his father, James P. Haddie. Haddie and his wife married last year.

According to Dr. Wolfe and Patrolman Nash, Haddie abused his wife. Dr. Wolfe said that Haddie had been in a clinic at the Congressional Church about a month ago. He had been there and took Mrs. Haddie to the clinic.

Haddie was with Dr. Wolfe. The doctor said that he was going to shoot Haddie. Dr. Wolfe said that he was going to shoot Haddie. Dr. Wolfe said that he was going to shoot Haddie.

STANDARD OIL MAGNATE POSED FOR AMERICAN.

SENATOR ASKS FOR CHANCE TO GO ON RECORD

Wires Senator Clapp for Permission to Appear Monday and Reply to Standard Oil Man's "Untruthful Hearsay"

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—I have sent a telegram to Senator Clapp in Washington, asking him if I may appear on Monday before the Senate investigating committee to make statement in my own behalf on the Archbold charges," said Colonel Theodore Roosevelt at Otter Bay tonight.

The colonel was very angry. "I will not allow Mr. Archbold's untruthful hearsay evidence to go uncorrected," he declared. "I want to go to Washington now to give my answer, because my campaign engagements will not permit me to go later."

"I want to put on record my statement under oath, and submit to any cross-examination that may be desired," said Colonel Roosevelt's telegram to Senator Clapp.

As I am not willing that Mr. Archbold's statement about me should pass without immediate official contradiction, I request the privilege of appearing before your committee on Monday. My engagements are such that it will be the greatest inconvenience to me and many others if my hearing is deferred to a later date.

Mad Clean Through.
The ex-President's laudation on appearing before the Senate investigating committee, so as to go on record on the charges of Archbold that Roosevelt as President had been guilty of a conspiracy to defraud the Standard Oil Company to help elect him in 1904.

He was clear through over the evidence given by Archbold. He intends, once he gets upon the witness stand, to repeat his assertion of yesterday, that Archbold had been a mad clean through in alleging that Roosevelt assisted in the campaign to elect Theodore Roosevelt.

"I am not willing that Mr. Archbold's untruthful hearsay evidence to go uncorrected," he declared. "I want to go to Washington now to give my answer, because my campaign engagements will not permit me to go later."

Burglars Fly Torch at Everett, Same Hero and Rescued Woman of 28 Years Ago.

Three burglars, who rifled and then set fire to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Chan, No. 10 Dean street, Everett, yesterday, came near causing the death of Mrs. Isabel C. Jenkins, sixty-three years, the mother of Mr. Chan, who was alone in the house.

Mrs. Jenkins was saved by Chief Swan of Everett fire department and a squad of men who forced the door of her chamber and took her out, snatched from smoke. By remarkable coincidence, Mrs. Jenkins was rescued from a second-floor room of her own home on Fremont street, Everett, twenty-eight years ago, by this same Chief Swan, who was then a young fireman, under command of his father, former Chief Swan. And, to perfect the coincidence, Mrs. Jenkins' house had been set on fire by the burglar's daughter, who was then a young girl.

The house was damaged to the extent of $2,500. It had been set on fire by the burglars. The burglars were caught and the house was saved.

Stand-Patters Try to Shake Off Penrose—Bailey, Heyburn and Others Attempt to Prevent Resolution of Inquiry

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Determined to prevent the exposed and discredited Penrose from pulling down with him the Old Guard leaders of the Senate this afternoon desperately fought his resolution for a thorough investigation of the relations between members of the United States and better writing corporations managers. Penrose's amendment, which applied the resolution also to correspondence between George W. Perkins and Theodore Roosevelt, did not prevent the plan to which Senator Hearst was pledged by the more thought of a resolution of inquiry.

Penrose's amendment was a very long one. It lasted for many hours. The Senate adjourned late to-night.

Railly Round Corporations.
Hearst, whose slogan is "The corporation is the enemy of the people," would be merely a man's hand, and he for one would not serve on a committee of investigation into the relations between members of the United States and better writing corporations managers.

Penrose's Grim Smile.
Penrose, with a certain grim humor which was lacking yesterday, took part in the preliminary debate on the resolution. He was very much amused by the purpose of bringing Colonel Roosevelt into the investigation.

No More Free Joy Rides on Elevated

Changes at Sullivan Square Go into Effect Today; Escalator Among Features.

No more elevated free "joy rides" to Sullivan square and riding back for nothing. Today the new features of the re-modelled Sullivan square terminal go into effect.

Escalators will have the exclusive use of a new platform over Main street to board the elevated trains. Cars on the Seaboard side, after unloading, will proceed a loop into the terminal again and take on out-bound passengers.

Out-bound elevated trains will stop inside the station as before as usual. They will proceed a loop then to take inbound trains.

This condition is inevitable in any "bona-fide" total-clearance sale. MRS. GOELET, DYING, MEETS SON IN PARIS

Million Dollar Yacht Nahma
Put in Drydock on Arrival at Havre.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Robert Goelet, the wealthy American woman who is reported to be dying from malignant cancer, arrived here today from Havre, under the care of physicians and nurses. She was met by her son, Robert Goelet, Jr., who had just arrived from New York.

A report from Havre stated that Mrs. Goelet has been cruising, was put into drydock in the basin there, apparently for a long period.

Mrs. Goelet has already undergone three operations for cancer, a disease which caused the death of her husband on board the Nahma.

Mrs. Goelet has lived aboard the Nahma ever since her husband's death. The vessel was at No. 101 Fifth avenue, New York, has not been out on an average of more than once in five years. She returned to Newport with her husband's body and remained in America almost a year after his death. Since 1909 she has divided her time between the Nahma and her villa at Redoubt, near Paris.

Newport and Paris did not see Mrs. Goelet again until 1909, when she returned for a brief season, entertaining for several days her absent husband. Mrs. Goelet had been received by royalty, was a frequent guest of the Emperor and Empress of Germany and entertained them aboard her yacht at Kiel.

Robert Goelet was a close friend of German royalty before his death, and Mrs. Goelet has maintained that friendship. The creation of the Nahma in the Mediterranean, the North Sea and the Baltic has been for Mrs. Goelet a continual source of pride and a source of solace, American and foreign dignitaries.

Robert Goelet, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet, died in New York in February, 1902, when only seven years old. Her father shared the vessel with her mother, Robert, who was then a young girl of the richest young bachelors in the city.

Under her husband's will Mrs. Goelet owned the yacht outright and the use of the vessel was in New York, New York, and Newport, Rhode Island, and elsewhere.

His will Mrs. Goelet made large gifts to his wife.

MARJORIE GOULD OF WOLLASTON, TO BE SEPTEMBER BRIDE

A pretty wedding is announced in the coming marriage of Miss Marjorie Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Parker Gould, of No. 72 South Central avenue, Wollaston, to Theodore Thomas, a Boston bank teller, to take place on the evening of September 7.

The wedding is of particular interest to the young people of Wollaston and West Quincy. Invitations have been issued to guests. The ceremony is to take place at the residence of the bride-to-be.

COLONEL INSISTS ON TAKING STAND

Declares He Will Controversy
the "Base Lies" of John D. Archbold.

"Wait until I get in the witness stand, I'll show them."

Colonel Roosevelt seemed just out over the attitude of Senator Clapp in allowing Archbold to give "heresy" evidence of such a grave nature.

"Senator Clapp meant all right, I think," observed the colonel, with a time of answer, "but they put it over on him. He let Archbold talk along, saying anything that came into his head."

Senator Clapp, it might be mentioned, was a staunch Roosevelt supporter up to the time of the Republican convention in June. Since then he has not been conspicuous in the Roosevelt camp.

The ex-President laughed grimly over a report that Archbold was going to bring an action for libel against him for calling the Standard Oil man a falsifier.

"He is, indeed," asserted the colonel. "Let him sue me. I'd like to go up and stand in a libel action brought by Archbold."

Mr. Archbold says he will not endure lightly any characterization of him as a liar," was suggested.

"I do not care whether he endures it lightly or heavily," replied Roosevelt with severity, "he is a dishonest, unscrupulous man."

"Why did the committee allow Archbold to get on the stand?"

"Why didn't they make him stay here and tell about his dealings with Persone?"

Why didn't they ask him about his relations with Persone, on the industrial committee? Why didn't they go into all the evidence, the relations between Archbold and Persone? The Senate Committee might as well ask Mr. Archbold many pertinent questions and draw from him all he knows of the corrupt influence of the Standard Oil in politics."

The New Filene Store

Seeing Ourselves as Others See Us

"FILENE'S are certainly justified in being enthusiastic about themselves, and it seems quite certain that the Boston public is sufficiently enthusiastic about the development of this big and successful local business to make an editorial style of publicity at this time interesting and successful."

The foregoing is taken from the August 21 issue of Women's Wear, an authoritative trade journal published in New York.

It refers to the first chapter of our series of preliminary advertisements for the new store appearing in Boston newspapers.

Discussing this advertisement Women's Wear says:

"By some the above business editorial by Filene's may be criticized on the ground that the public is really not interested in such statements of a store's principles and methods, that the public doesn't care how the goods are got and merchandized, but only to know what the store is offering, and that the values and styles and service are right. From this viewpoint, extensive advertising space devoted to such more or less necessarily self-centered arguments as above is simply wasted.

"On the other hand, take the example of the Wanamaker store, Marshall Field & Co. and Selfridge's of London, Wanamaker's, perhaps the most successful, original and liberal department store advertiser in the world, has always most freely given space to business editorials of a similar nature.

"Surely a Shakespearean play or spectacle of gorgeous nature must be fittingly staged to make its best effect. Are not these Filene editorials to the new store what the song of the Man and the Woman is to the play 'Kismet'? In the play, the song of the Man and the Woman before the rising of the curtain brings the spectators gradually and surely into the atmosphere of the Orient, making them forget the everyday life from which they have just come, so that by the time the actual play begins the audience is in mood to receive and hold the impressions of the wonderfully staged drama.

"So, with the Filene store, these business editorials prepare the Boston people and in a way bring them into fresh sympathy with the broadened atmosphere of the institution.

"Filene's are again expanding into a new basis, so enlarged and glorified as to make it practically a new store and a new basis. They are on a new plane, in a new, exalted atmosphere. And the Boston public to a large extent certainly appreciate this.

"They do want to know at this time. They want to understand something of the methods of 'scientific specialization' that have made this Boston store known as conspicuously successful, not only in that city, but throughout the country. They want to know that the wise store principles and methods on which a great success have been built up will in this magnified new Filene's be 'unchanged except as they are amplified.'

"Should not such publicity be most happy in filling out the interval preliminary to the opening of the new store, in a way that no regular cut-and-dry advertising could be? It is a certain raiser or prologue anticipatory to the opening of the awaited performance.

"An effective point in the first of this Filene series of business editorials is that it quickly gets down to the news points in connection with the company's plans for its new store, and that it touches aptly upon the important question of distribution in connection with the high cost of living. At this time there could be no more telling point.

"Further it may be commented that this first business editorial is couched in earnest, convincing language. While, of course, it boosts the store's principles and achievements, it does so without being offensively egotistical, it is clever without being griggish.

"It is fair and fitting occasion for a little natural pride and 'preachification.' The play of merchandise will follow again, with natural ease and grace, the prideful reminder of principle and practice which assure that merchandise its values, and the public satisfaction."

Today begins the second week of these business editorials in the American. Other chapters will appear daily prior to the new store's opening.

On Monday we shall trace backward our career since the days of the founder, aiming to show that the new plans mean simply "Widening of a Path that was True from the Beginning."

PLOT AGAINST LIFE OF REPRESENTATIVE

Conspirators Against Johnson of Kentucky Fight His Proposed Bills.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—A scheme to kill Representative Ben Johnson of Kentucky, chairman of the House Committee on the District of Columbia, so as to head off certain proposed legislation, has been revealed to Mr. Johnson, and an affidavit has put the Kentuckian and his friends on guard.

"I know all about it," said Mr. Johnson today, "but I'd rather not say what the interests are back of the idea."

The sworn statement of a Washington man, detailing a conversation he heard of in a street car in which one of those taking part said he had been following Mr. John

"The story is absolutely true," said Mr. Johnson.

"Are the parties?" he was asked.

"I do not care to say," he replied.

"What do you propose to do?"

"I will make a statement to the fact, execute the threat."

"But I don't want to go into details," he said.

"I am in the habit of making a statement in his advocacy of legislation," he said.

"District of Columbia," he said to have been a member of the House of Representatives.

"I interpret his visits as hostile," he said.

"The affidavit was sworn to in the Senate," he said.

"Washington, who, riding on an F. A. car, heard a man say he had followed Mr. Johnson to the house of a friend, and for the purpose of slugging the Kenton," he said.

"Behind and killing him," he said.

"I am a friend of the parties," he said.

Mr. Johnson, instantly had his information.

From up and down the South Shore and across Hingham and Weymouth, the noisy everybody went down to the town of Hingham early yesterday. And there they were, the thousands of people expected. There was nothing to the fact that the day was a holiday, and the people were expected to be there. The day was a holiday, and the people were expected to be there. The day was a holiday, and the people were expected to be there.

Mr. Johnson has been annoyed recently by the theft of important papers bearing on District of Columbia matters and has now reported to the custodian of the House office building.

SPANIARDS FEAR REVOLT

Want Weyler Put in Charge to Check Uprising.

[illegible]

MADRID, Aug. 24.—Policia men who are preparing a memorial to King Alfonso to remonstrate General Vives with for his conduct as premier, have their request on the threat of a formidable revolutionary mob break. They consider an uprising imminent, and take a strong line like "Dutchmen" Weyler consider to deal with it.

Next November's Prices

Even under normal conditions November Prices are higher—and this year the Fur Workers' strike makes practically certain a more-than-usual increase. So—it would seem that the part of wisdom is to buy now.

Terms of Sale

Furs purchased in this sale will be held in storage and insured for us, free of charge, until November 1st (if not called for earlier by the purchaser). No deposit is required. Payment to be made or charge to be put through to accounts November 1st—unless delivered prior to that date.

The New Store Doors are almost Open. Final Touches almost completed and over a million dollars' worth of fresh, new merchandise is waiting its turn to be distributed to various departments.

After 5 weeks' of out-of-the-ordinary Giving of Values---the climax is at hand. And---in 34 selling hours (8 1/2 hours each day) we must accomplish the final clean up. Time is so short that we must clean quickly and shortly. This is the method---

Every piece of merchandise (except the small amount we take with us) has been marked down to such a price that Seeing it should mean Buying it.

There are hundreds of Small Lots, Single Pieces, Imported and Domestic Models, Odd Sizes, etc., scattered through the entire store---except the Fur Department---

At 1/2 to 3/4 Off

It's the last Stock-taking Sale---the final clearing of our stocks in this store. Filene Quarterly Stock-taking Sales have in the past stood for things extraordinary. This one should add to the reputation of its predecessors.

Impossible to tell You of the opportunities except in a general way. But the Windows will indicate them, and frequent shopping trips through the store are sure to Repay Amply the little time they take.

Last Days in the Present Bargain Basement

Time is counted by hours now, before we move to the New Automatic Bargain Basement. We shall have over five times the present space, yet we are taking with us all the Bargain Making Systems that have proved a success here.
Meanwhile last days should be busy ones. Last Monday we had one of the largest day's sales we had ever had in August or July. Tomorrow we should have another EVEN BIGGER day. WHY?
The lots below and the Hundreds not Advertised are the reason.

"TURKEY TROT" TOO TAME FOR PIER BALL

Yes, there were 200 couples reveling in this forest glade when the ball started and every costume from Christopher Columbus to a fairy queen was represented.

the more conversative element had left the place, getting away as quickly and quietly as possible.

Those Startling Dances.

By 3 a. m. even those considered "really quite broad minded" had found it too much and had also stolen away.

While I was frying the eggs the girls ran into the kitchen. They said they were hungry and snatched the eggs out of the pan. One singed her fingers.

A girl dressed as a Quaker grabbed the pan and informed me that she would fry for me. They

and by 6 a. m. there were none left but those to whom the word conservative was Greek and who had passed a part of their childhoods and young manhoods where the dining room was the place of assembly.

and by 6 a. m. there were none left but those to whom the word conservative was Greek and who had passed a part of Amherst College and summer at a point where the dining room was a mess, but service was good.

Just the other day, the performance was blase and easily eclipsed any burlesque show ever produced at any size for a N. H. group, a telephoned expert named Quins, who was Imported from Providence by the society women of the Pier, has been working overtime imparting to those fair dames and dandies all the wide knowledge of the more recent dances. Her instructions were so definite, truth of the matter is she didn't know the difference. The "spirits" had been working well. They were all happy.

Some Who Were There.
Among those attending the ball

They were the costume of a French art student, and Mrs. Gilbert Bonaldi im-

The Pier is becoming a fancy-dance place. If the school students personified Miss Janis in the role of "The Slim Princess," Miss Janis, mother, Mrs. Josephine Janis, entertained friends at dinner after the ball. Miss Marguerite Presset was Miss Janis' companion, and also were a French art student's mother and

There were some fine dining-places, was at a premium, the biggest and one of the gayest seasons in the history of the Pier was run to a that Friday night's air.

On this particular occasion, the Casino was swarmed. The glaring lamps of waiting automobiles were so numerous that they illuminated the place. Mr. and Mrs. J. D. MAKE BOSTON AUTO CENTRE, SAYS MAYOR

In Letter to Chamber of Commerce He Calls for Action

Boston, Aug. 24.—Mayor Curran, in a letter to the Chamber of Commerce, today called for action to make Boston an auto center. He said that the city should be made a center for the automobile industry, and that the Chamber of Commerce should take the lead in this work. He said that the city should be made a center for the automobile industry, and that the Chamber of Commerce should take the lead in this work.

The Making of Real Men at the Y. M. C. A. New Home to Greatly Broaden Its Work

NEW Y. M. C. A. BUILDING AND TWO MEN IDENTIFIED PROMINENTLY WITH IT

NEW Y. M. C. A. BUILDING AND TWO MEN IDENTIFIED PROMINENTLY WITH IT

Boston has an institution that is making American citizens of the very highest type. This institution, the Y. M. C. A., cares for a man's mental, educational, social, moral and spiritual needs. It is like a great giant workshop spreading out in every corner of the city in its effort to give aid to those deserving it.

When the new building on Huntington avenue is completed, the work will be broadened out, the amount of good that the institution will do will be greatly extended.

The Y. M. C. A. builds a man's character, shapes his character, and then takes care of him as a man.

When the new building on Huntington avenue is completed, the work will be broadened out, the amount of good that the institution will do will be greatly extended.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOLS SPEL OPPORTUNITY

How Institutions Fit Young Man for Chances in Business World.

By ALBERT E. GEORGE.

YOUNG MEN, who are not getting a good education and who are not getting a good business education, are not getting a good chance in the business world.

What They Say About It. There is a great deal of error in the minds of many young men. They think that the business world is a place where they can get a good chance without a good education.

There is a good and growing opportunity for the young man in the business world. He can get a good chance if he has a good education and a good business education.

1840—This school was founded in the year 1840 and was the first Commercial School (or College) in America.

Its record of 72 years of usefulness and success speaks for itself, and is the best guarantee the school can offer to prospective pupils.

1912—Today Comer's is a moderate sized, evenly balanced, well equipped school, taking pride in the quality of its instruction and in providing for its pupils competent teachers, practical and a high degree of study, and suitable employment when they become qualified. It is quite content to be known as The Best Commercial School in Boston, rather than the largest.

39975 Young Men and Women have attended this school in the past, most of whom—successful in business—are today living as the result of the value of the instruction received here.

Modern Book-keeping, including Safeguard, Voucher Card, Loose Leaf and other systems, together with cost accounting, job costing, accounts, adjusting entries, grouping of accounts, etc., is a special feature of this school.

The Shorthand Department is particularly strong for beginners or advanced pupils in either the Pitman, the Graham or the Chandler System, and in making expert Touch Typewriters of its pupils.

Individual Instruction is guaranteed; each pupil receiving the careful personal attention of the teachers whenever needed, and thus progressing as rapidly as his or her ability will permit.

The Age of This School, its long intercourse with Boston business men, and its position as the most popular in business who look to this school for their office help, makes good employment easier for every Comer graduate.

A Triumph

In January, 1911, an examination was held in Boston for official dictation. Thirty-two dictators were present, but only two by Mr. Horbitt, L. Corbett, a pupil of the Clark School.

The Clark School makes no questionable promises, does not rely on the magnitude of equipment, but it provides the best. The pupils are cared for in every way, and fitted for the best in life.

So sure is this school of results that the examinations are conducted not by the teachers, but by such well-known experts as Mr. Frank H. Burt and Mr. William W. Collins.

One of the most interesting new battery factory innovations of the 1912 era was the Delco system of batteries. The cranking electric lighting and starting for the 1912 cars was a real problem. Existing equipment developed from previous years was easily supplanted by new Delco equipment developed from the experience with the old system on the 1912 cars. Among the simplifications were the successful adoption of the single voltage double voltage system, thereby eliminating the center line switch, the meter wiring and many parts. The voltage was regulated and the batteries placed at

40,000 Cars a Year Makes this Value Possible

HERE is the car we have asked you to wait for. Those who have heeded our advice will profit. Those who have not will lose. You were duly warned, advised and notified, and those whose better judgment directed them to delay their automobile purchase, until we made public our 1913 facts, are now in a position to feel no little amount of keen satisfaction.

This car, at this price, smashes all previous records. It even totally eclipses our 1912 values, which a year ago baffled the world. 40,000 Overlands will be made in 1913. This enormous jump in production makes possible this new car at this new price. As our production goes up, our prices come down, as has been shown in each preceding year.

Now let's take this car and carefully analyze the value. First take the remarkable and exceptionally complete equipment of standard accessories. The Warner speedometer is conceded by practically every manufacturer in the world to be the best made. It is the speedometer you find on all of the $5,000 cars. We could have put on a speedometer that costs just half that of the Warner but we wanted the best. The price of this speedometer is $50 the world over. Then take the top and boot. This top is made of the finest mohair. You could not buy it for less than $50 in the open market. The clear vision wind shield is handsome, strong and serviceable. Besides being an ornament to the car it adds that touch of completion. The retail price of this anywhere is $25.

Then there is the well known Prestolite Tank, the price of which you know from past experience is always and to everyone the same. The Overland self-starter cannot be purchased for less than $25. This car carries a $50 Remy Magneto which has an established reputation all over the world.

We can touch the big subject of the car itself but slightly. The specifications above tell the story. Here is detailed the most remarkable automobile value the world has ever been offered. Note particularly such high-grade features and fineness in the construction as the famous Timken roller bearings on the front wheels and the equally famous Hyatt bearings on the rear axle. Note more carefully the long wheel-base and big motor. The wheel-base of 110 inches gives ample leg room in both seats.

The selective transmission, too, is fitted with fine annular bearings. Read carefully the spring and brake dimensions. Compare these spring and brake facts with cars that cost twice the price. Do this without fail. You'll find no difference. The three-quarter floating rear axle is another big and important feature.

Have you ever heard of an equal value for less than $1,200? Why, as a matter of actual fact, you can find $1,500 cars that have practically no more to offer than this one for $985.

In this age of rapid progress it is sometimes difficult to grasp the full significance of an important, progressive manufacturing step, such as this car exemplifies. But when you sum up the extraordinary cold dollar for dollar value which this car offers, as compared to any and all competing motor car values, the giant economical manufacturing strength of the huge Overland plants is realized and recognized. It only proves the ability of this most powerful and efficient automobile factory. It only proves the economy of producing over 40,000 cars a year and the big money saving it means to you.

We can make the positive statement, without any kind of a condition, that this is the automobile industry's record value.

This car can now be seen in any city in America. Over 2,000 Overland dealers are waiting to give you your demonstration. Look up the Overland dealer in your city today. His address is below. Phone him for a demonstration. He will give you all the time, at any time you want.

MAN SETS THE PACE FOR THE MAKING OF AUTOS

John N. Willys Sets Terrific Pace 365 Days in Year.

JOHN N. WILLYS.

Toledo Manufacturer Beats the Postman to Work in Morning.

Truth and fiction have come out of the West, telling of the growth of the automobile industry and then many have grown up with it. Staff writers of the national magazines and the highest priced literary experts have combined in their efforts. The other day an Eastern representative in the West saw a Toledo man, the manager of the Toledo factory, who was in a Toledo car, and he said to him: "You are a man who has a terrific pace for the manufacturing of 40,000 autos in less than 365 days."

This man, who is John N. Willys, is said to be the most active manufacturer of any of the Western car companies. He is in a Toledo car in a Toledo factory in a Toledo city, and he is said to be the most active manufacturer of any of the Western car companies. After all, tire worth depends entirely on the men behind the tires. So today let us cover the human side—the ambitions and principles, the men and the methods which underlie Goodyear tires.

Not in a personal way—not a boastful way. We wish simply to show, in these days of complaint, that Big Business may still be guided by The Golden Rule.

Complete Independence

We believe that active competition, better than anything else, insures justice to consumers.

It makes quality essential, compels fair prices, induces a square deal.

Under free competition the best man wins, and that's best for all concerned.

So we maintain complete independence. We have no trade alliances, no gentlemen's agreements. And consolidation, when proposed, has met our earnest opposition.

Even our patents are licensed to others, to avoid the slightest taint of monopoly.

Moderate Capitalization

We believe that high cost of living is largely due to the enormous volume of watered stocks.

Fictitious capital, calling for dividends, compels prices out of reason.

So we have chosen a modest capitalization, though this is the world's largest tire business. Not a dollar of water in our capital stock.

Even in our assets neither patents nor good will. We have no bonded debt.

Moderate Profits

We insist on moderate profits. Our eventual interests, we are sure, are best conserved in that way.

Our profit last year on No-Rim-Cut tires averaged 8% per cent. That's half the usual in a line like this.

Profit Sharing

We believe that men work best who have a share in the earnings. And that owners of the business are apt to best serve its patrons.

So 134 of our leading men share in the Goodyear profits. And the Company has helped them acquire their stock.

Our branch managers are stockholders. Thus our dealings with the public, the customer over, are being conducted by partners.

In our factories, building tires, there are 49 stockholders. In our office there are 33.

Ninety per cent of the Goodyear common stock is owned by the active men in the concern.

Every voice in our policy, every factor in quality, every creator of Goodyear reputation, shares the results of his actions.

We view of no better way to insure to our customers the service which we intend.

Trained Men

College-bred men are employed here in large numbers. Their accurate training and breadth of view are evident in Goodyear dealings.

For our factories we "pick" the most promising men who come from great technical schools.

Every year four superintendents visit the best of these schools, where he aims to select the very cream of the graduates.

Thus we have gathered here, in the course of years, an army of trained and competent men. And the future of all of them depends on better tires.

All Young Men

We believe in "young" men, and our organization consists of them. The most important man in it, in a manufacturing way, is 36 years old.

Thus the Goodyear concern typifies the activity, the enthusiasm, the ambition, the enterprise of youth.

Each man's career lies mainly before him. So no one rests on his laurels, none is yet capping up.

Goodyear men, wherever you meet them, are the kind you like to meet. They personify intelligent activity.

Fairness and Truth

Above all, with these men we insist on fair dealing, and on utter regard for the truth.

Faults and mistakes are forgiven by all of us, but unfairness and falsehood are not.

Here, then, we believe, the chiefest reason for the Goodyear growth. Wherever you seek you'll find a boundless faith in what the Goodyear people do.

A 6-Mile Factory Now Results Also Monarchy of Tiredom

Do ideals in business pay? Let us note the results after 13 years. Goodyear tires now far outsell every other tire. The sales have doubled six times over in the past three years. They double now once in eight months.

Trade came like a flood as soon as men became acquainted with these tires. Now a monthly output of 100,000 fails to keep pace with the call. Few business stories ever told compare with the Goodyear story.

Factory Growth

Our original factory had 35,000 square feet. Our additions for the year 1912 alone will total $60,000 square feet.

When these additions are completed they will give us a total of 1,500,000 square feet.

Figure what that means. The factory fifty feet wide, and one story high, it would be over six miles long.

Goodyear Popularity

Our monthly sales now just about equal our year's sales in the year 1909.

Last year's output for the first six months was 180,000 automobiles. This year's output for the same six months, came to 465,000 tires.

This has largely come about through what motorists said about Goodyear tires and methods.

Those are eloquent figures to answer the question, "How does business pay?"

How It Came About

The oldest men we could find have, for 13 years, worked to perfect these tires.

Years ago, in our factory, they built a tire-testing machine. This machine went out for miles at a time, under all sorts of road conditions.

This machine they have tested over 200 fabrics, and some 400 formulas for tread.

Every method and process has been put to the ultimate test of mileage.

New ideas have been constantly compared with the old. Rival tires have been compared with our own.

Rim-Cutting Ended Completely

Then some of our experts took up the rim-cutting question. They examined thousands of ruined tires, of nearly every make. And they found among all the clincher tires that 23 per cent were rim-cut.

Then a tire was invented to make rim-cutting impossible. It is known as the Goodyear No-Rim-Cut.

These tires now outsell every other tire made. They are used today on tens of thousands of cars. Yet never has one been rim-cut.

By this invention alone we wiped out for tire users about 23 per cent of the tire upkeep.

Saving Blow-Outs

At the same time our experts took up the question of blow-outs, due to overloaded tires.

Every question that came up, has been answered only by the mileage test.

After 13 years of that sort of comparison, we have brought Goodyear tires pretty close to reality.

200,000 Users

There are not less than 200,000 motorists now using Goodyear tires. Wherever we have made a careful count—at shows and in showrooms—every 100 cars we have counted 10 Goodyear tires.

This year, 127 leading motor car makers contracted for Goodyear tires. Over 100 of the 1912 models were equipped at the factory with them. That is the present situation, with 25 competitors making tires.

Now Goodyear sales are doubling every eight months. They are twelve times larger than three years ago.

Judge for yourself what conditions will be when you know these tires.

The Goodyear Tire Book—based on 13 years of tire mileage—filled with facts you should know. Ask us to mail it to you.

Goodyear pneumatic tires are guaranteed when filled with air under the recommended pressure. When filled with any substitute for air our guarantee is withdrawn.

GOODYEAR TIRE DEALERS

That's Our Goal For 1913--100 New Velie Dealers in New England

And to get them we are inaugurating an entirely new selling campaign which will provide a broad and comprehensive plan for the assistance of every dealer in the Velie organization. If you are a Velie dealer we will work with you in your own territory, in gaining publicity, securing prospects, and actually closing sales. We will give you the benefit of expert advertising, expert demonstrators, and expert salesmen. We will co-operate with you in a manner never before attempted in the automobile trade, all of which means a profitable business for you—PROVIDED YOU ARE A VELIE DEALER.

We want a Velie dealer in every town and city in New England. Why not write today and let us tell you all about 1913 line, including the wonderful Velie 32 at $1350, and explain to you the details of our new selling system. Don't wait until someone else has secured your territory, but just drop us a card today or better yet, wire us, asking for this information.

The Strange Fad for Evil Gems

How sensible and beautiful Mrs. Edward McLean, of Washington, broke the HOODOO on the Blue HOPE DIAMOND and set the fashion in Jewels with Histories.

MRS. JOHN DREXEL WHO WEARS THE EMERALD OF CORTES

COLLECTING jewels that have evil histories is the latest fad among women of fashion in this country and Europe. The jewel markets of the world are being searched for gems with backgrounds, and the darker, the more evil that background is the better. Mrs. Edward McLean's purchase of the Hope diamond started this very odd fad, and today wherever two or more fashionable women are gathered together one hears strange, weird tales of their jewel tragedies.

The history of the Hope diamond is, of course, known the whole world over. It became one of the crown jewels during the reign of Louis XIV. Mme. de Maitenon, blamed it for her ill luck. Queen Marie Antoinette wore it and was beheaded. The Princess of Lamballe wore it and was killed by the mob. For forty years it was missing; then it reappeared, and in the years since its reappearance it has caused suicides, murders and other tragic occurrences.

The histories of some of the gems now being collected by other fashionable women are not so well known. Mrs. John Drexel, for instance, has in her possession some of the famous emeralds of Cortes. The first day that Mrs. Drexel wore the emeralds she fell and sprained her ankle. Two weeks later her daughter, Miss Alice Drexel, was operated on for appendicitis, and before she was fully recovered Mr. Drexel developed typhoid fever. These emeralds are wonderfully beautiful. They are like balls of green fire, and are as large as robin's eggs. They cost one and a half million dollars and at least two hundred lives. The atrocities perpetrated by Cortes and his cruel followers are matter of history. They committed murders, they tortured the natives of Mexico, they burned their homes and killed their wives and children—all for these emeralds and others like them. The jewels of Cortes have been cursed for centuries. Blood is on them, the natives of old Mexico said, and the descendants of the Montezumas cursed not only Cortes but whomsoever should possess the jewels in the future.

Oddly enough, Mrs. Stewart Barney, a prominent member of the Newport colony, has a diamond whose history she did not know when she bought it. Five years ago Mrs. Barney bought a large and very pure stone. She had it set in a brooch. Ten times in ten months that stone disappeared. It was always found, but only to disappear again.

This Spring, however, Mrs. Barney decided to collect evil gems, and at once she thought of her diamond. She had its history looked up, and found that in Amsterdam, where it was cut, it was called the "Drifting Diamond." Whoever handled that stone lost it. Sometimes it was lost for a day, sometimes for a month. Finally one man who lost it killed himself, and the stone was sent to Paris, and there Mrs. Barney bought it. A few weeks ago Mrs. Barney lost the brooch again while on Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt's yacht. It has not been found yet.

Mrs. Peter Martin, a sister of Mrs. Leonard Thomas, of Newport, is particularly proud of her South American turquoises. These stones are of a rare tone of blue. The twelve largest, were taken to London by a native of South America. He was careless and tongueless. He had been set upon by bandits and nearly killed while making his way to the seacoast with a bag of precious stones. He had stolen the gems from a temple in the Andes and lost all but these twelve turquoises. He also lost his ears and his tongue. After selling the stones in London he went to Paris, and there he was murdered by emissaries sent from the priests whose temple he had desecrated.

Thus there is Gaby Deslys and her "pearls of tears." These wonderful stones not only have a history—they made history. They were responsible for the downfall of the Portuguese throne. For these pearls Manuel gave his crown.

Mrs. Craig Biddle, who is a sister of Mrs. Robert Goebel, has a pink pearl that she prizes because the beautiful princess who wore it was murdered by her husband because she loved another.

Queen Mary of England wears a large and perfect pearl on one of her necklaces. This is a pearl with a "murder" history. It was found by two men, Americans, who were oystering in the Ohio River. One of the men killed the other for the pearl. And Queen Mary prizes this pearl, it is said, more than any of the crown jewels of England. These collectors prize their stones for the "hoodoos," not for the price paid for them.

Do You Think She's a Beauty?

The Idea of This Contest Is to Find the Prettiest Girl in America (Some Persons Think She Is One of Them--Do You?)

THE Winter Garden in New York is desirous of finding the most beautiful girl in the United States. To her the Winter Garden offers an engagement of four weeks at a minimum salary of Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars a week with an option of renewing the contract for a longer period. In addition they will supply her with suitable costumes, and will pay her expenses to New York if she should prove to live outside of New York.

Knowing that there is no better medium than this newspaper to find anything anyone wants the Winter Garden has authorized this newspaper to make the offer in the Winter Garden's name.

The winner will be selected by a board of judges, made up of some of the most distinguished artists in America. The names of two of those may now be announced: Harrison Fisher, perhaps the most famous illustrator in the world to-day, and Penchya Steals, whose charming and beautiful work is the delight of many thousands.

The only conditions imposed are, first, that the young woman selected shall be at least eighteen years of age; second, that if not twenty-one years of age, she shall have the written consent of her parents or guardians to her adoption of a stage career; and, thirdly, that she shall not have had previous experience on the professional stage.

The Winter Garden will also supply five handsome gold medals, valued at One Hundred Dollars each, to be awarded to five other women whose beauty shall be declared, by the judges, to rank next to the woman who proves winner of the Grand Prize.

This newspaper will not return any of the photographs sent as to be placed before the judges, and it cannot the right to publish any or all of such photographs, whether the senders are prize winners or not.

This Picture Gives a Full Front View of the Face of the "Great Lakes Beauty," Showing the Broad Brow and Distance Between the Eyes that Are by Many Considered Essentials of Loveliness.

THE competition in the beauty contest has thus far proven the adage that beauty is in the eye of the beholder. While not strictly true it is in some sense true, for every person has a standard of beauty, a personal standard that, while serious to himself, is often not so to his friends. Every man thinks for a time at least that his wife is the loveliest woman in the world, though, perhaps, no one in the world agrees with him. A famous artist admonished women never to grow fat, for fat, as he phrased it, is the grave of beauty. On the other hand an artist almost equally famous reproaches in all his pictures the buxom outlines of his wife, who, to use a line in a new and popular farce, is "plump and curvaceous."

Some can see no beauty in the woman of dusky hair while others abominate fair tresses. Some men admire a statuesque beauty of the height described as divine, while others are attracted only by haughty women, the small, chic type, so elastically thin that, as a huge man said, they seem to have been made to wear on a man's watch chain. Some men and women admire a complexion that is flecked with red. A few see beauty only in an olive skin.

It will doubtless be difficult for the judges, competent though they be, in the beauty contest, to agree upon the winner among the thousands of photographs that are pouring into this office. The individual standard of beauty is so likely to superimpose itself upon the more or less generally accepted canons of beauty, that impartial judgment by these modern Parisians will be difficult.

Nevertheless, there are standards which the competitors must meet, or, at least, approach. There is, for instance, the Venus de Milo, which for ages has been the concrete idealization of feminine beauty. The body of that exquisite statue that stands at the head of the main corridor in the Louvre, is a harmony in lines. There is in those softly blended curves a lesson and a rebuke to the woman who dresses so that her figure is a succession of vulgar bulges. One curve of the body that, though carved in stone, gives an impression of softness melts easily into another.

The symmetry of that body has been for centuries an inspiration to the artist. Consciously or unconsciously, the great painters and sculptors have chosen the models for their pictures and statues by this standard.

The shoulders and hips were required to be of nearly the same width. The waist should be less by ten inches than the bust. The face must be as long from middle of the forehead to the chin as the hand is from the tip of the middle finger to the wrist. The feet must be of the same relative size as the hand.

These Millean measurements, with which no judge however personally biased toward the tall woman or the little woman, the plump woman or the slender woman, can quarrel, have been attained by the beauty whose pictures appear on this page. She is only one out of a hundred possible winners up to date. If you think you're as pretty or prettier, send in your photograph. The competition will not close for three weeks.

Her name it has not been deemed wise to publish at this time. It is enough to say that hers is a type of beauty produced on the shores of the Great Lakes. Her home is at Buffalo, where one sees many of her type, robust, fresh skinned, clear-eyed, athletic beauty.

She is a full-blooded beauty, the broad oval of her face proving vitality and suggesting Teutonic origin. A true girl of the Great Lakes, she has excellent poise of head and body, that poise which comes from much out-of-door life. Send in your photograph.

THE OFFICIAL STORY OF PERUS RUBBER HORRORS—CRUELER THAN THE CONGO!

The First Actual Details of the South American Atrocities That Shocked the World Revealed in a Remarkable "Blue Book" Published by the British Government.

The rubber-harvesting atrocities in the Amazon region of Peru have not been fully made public. They are more cruel and more extensive than the atrocities in the Congo. The British Government has now published a remarkable "Blue Book" which reveals the first actual details of the South American atrocities that shocked the world. The book is published by the British Government.

Barbara Vaughan, a Peruvian woman, is shown in the photograph. She is standing in a field, wearing a patterned blouse and a skirt. The background shows some trees and a fence.

By Lady Duff-Gordon ("Lucile")

FOR a young girl no walking gown could be more appropriate than the simple costume shown in one of the photographs I am sending you today. It is of blue charmeuse with a plain black satin belt, buttons of the same charmeuse being the only accent at trimming.

More elaborate are the two gowns shown in the other picture. The one on the right is of striped pink taffeta with embroidered flowers on it. The little bodice is made all of lace and shades of blue around the waist, with a large square diamond buckle. The skirt has paniers at the back and bunches of beautiful silk flowers are worn in the belt and hair.

The model on the left is a black silk evening gown with draped rows in black jet, with gold leaves worked on. The bodice is of diamonds and pearls, with a piece of the same embroidered which ornaments the skirt. It is draped over one shoulder. There are no sleeves, just a little band of gold single strap, fastening over the top, a tiny buckle of the same brocade leather giving a further flourish to the front; or you can, if you prefer it, reverse this arrangement and have a bordering band, a blue and a strap of black patent leather shoe lace and a small black tie, rather velvet, over the front.

ing skirts and draped afternoon and evening dresses seem to have entered into a friendly, or, at any rate, fashionable, rivalry as to which shall be the more of the wearer's ankles! Really, I think that a censor should be appointed to decide, on its own individual merits or demerits, just how much or little ankle should be revealed. For the owner of the said—limb or member!—seems incapable of realizing that only when it is really slender and pretty is it worth showing and setting, and that, positively, it is not far to the public to force upon their unwilling gaze a stolid, thick "understanding," devoid of any curves or charms. Then, again, it is difficult, if not actually impossible, for the tailor or modiste to refuse to follow the general fashion and the personal direction, as only a most unflattering conclusion could be drawn from such a course. So that, on the whole—and though at first it might seem that such a solution might be an enviable one, it would, I fancy, on consideration, be somewhat difficult to find or retain candidates! So we must just suffer from unpleasant sights and be contented with few and far between delights and disappointments. And while skirts are thus being shortened and cut up in a centre or at the side, bodices and waists are being cut down lower and lower, even the polo collar and the short Japanese neck, tailcoat and shirt, are being cut down to such an extent that it would have been considered positively decent and suitable for the daytime.

MY SECRETS OF BEAUTY

By Mme. Lina Cavalleri, the Greatest Living Beauty

No. 189--Indigestion an Arch-Foe to Beauty

MME. CAVALIERI writes to-day of the indispensable element in beauty, good digestion. She describes the effect of indigestion upon the body and the spirits. She tells what form of exercises are best adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus and gives valuable advice about choice of foods.

By Mme. Lina Cavalleri.

SHOW me a girl who has indigestion and I will show you a person with muddy complexion, dull or feverishly bright eyes, a coated tongue and a languid manner. None of these makes for beauty. All are signs of ill-health. Besides these outward and visible signs of ill health, it is a heavy weight upon the spirits. The girl thinks she is unhappy, and manufactures causes for misery, or exaggerates the trifles that are not to her liking and makes them causes for unhappiness.

Besides these, indigestion causes yet graver troubles. I recall a person I knew who, having passed from the earthly plane, whose decline in health began with various symptoms of indigestion. It was never clear to me whether the indigestion was the cause or the effect of these maladies. But I trust I have said enough to prove that indigestion is a most undesirable state. Vanity alone should forbid it.

How to prevent indigestion? I shall have a great deal to say further on about food wrong in kind or quantity as a cause of indigestion. But first let me tell you of an excellent exercise to disengage indigestion.

Knead the abdomen on retiring and several times a day when there is opportunity. Double your hands as though for kneading bread. Place the clenched hands beneath the ribs. Press firmly and regularly upon the intestines, moving the fists forward until they meet. Having done this five to ten times, allow the left hand to rest at your side and with the right hand press gently but steadily downward at the left of the abdomen until your hand is opposite the thigh. Repeat this operation several times each time you take the exercise. This is still more effective if taken while you are lying in your bathtub. The relaxation of the muscles is aided by the fact that they are under water. The hydrostatic shock believes the one of the greatest aids to restoring proper digestion.

Such is this exercise, which can be taken in bed:—Lying upon your back, draw the knees slowly up beneath the chin, then let the legs fall to their former position. This is the most valuable of early morning exercises for those who have a torpid liver or a case of indigestion. Coarse cereals are an enemy to indigestion. Baidon dress on a case of indigestion in Scotland, and if we do, it is when we waste our food. Baidon dress on a case of indigestion in Scotland, and if we do, it is when we waste our food. Baidon dress on a case of indigestion in Scotland, and if we do, it is when we waste our food.

wheat, rice, all being large foodstuffs, stir the stomach and are too heavy for activity, which is good for digestion.

Again, every girl should know some of the principles of the values of foods. Apply to your daily food these facts. Your food should consist of these proportions:

Mixture of starches and sugars, about 15 parts. Potatoes, 4 parts. Fat, 2 parts.

In other words, one-half of our daily amount of food may be made up of potatoes, rice, bread, etc. (one-eighth should consist of the proteins, as milk, or eggs, or cheese. One-eighth should be fat, as butter or the fat to be found in meat, fish, etc.)

Keep this table in mind and you will find a new interest in choosing your food, and in a short time you will welcome a marked improvement in your health. Do not decline sweets unless you are overworked, but eat them at the right time, which is as dessert for luncheon or dinner. Never eat cake nor candy between meals.

Turn resolutely away from all fried foods. You have heard that fried foods are injurious, but you do not know why. It is my pleasure to tell you. They are indigestible because they form in the stomach a substance as thick and unwholesome as leather, and as difficult to digest. Neither meat nor eggs nor milk should ever reach the boiling point. For the same reason never eat boiled beef, nor a boiled egg, nor milk that has been boiled. The heat has been dropped into water, just below the boiling point, and allowed to heat there for eight hours. Instead of boiling food, and milk that has been heated but never permitted to show one of the bubbles that attend the boiling state, are substitutes for the old method.

Mme Lina Cavalleri.

Beauty Questions Answered

Blonde addresses three queries: "Will you kindly publish formula for a cold cream that will not cause hair to grow on the face?" I think my face has a tendency to hair-growing. A night down has been appearing of late. Is there anything I can do to keep the flesh from tearing or breaking around my finger nails? Can you give me a remedy for darkening the eyelashes?"

It is often the friction rather than the cold cream that causes hair to grow. Drop the cold cream for a time and try face lotion instead. This is soothing and whitening.

Rosewater 1½ ounces
Glycerine 1½ ounces
Carbolic acid 2 drops
The flesh breaks and tears about your nails because you have permitted it to get too hard. Press it back from the nail after washing the hands. Meanwhile, rub cold cream into the skin at the base of the nail before retiring; or soak them in a bowl of oil daily until they become soft.

Olive oil 1 ounce
Smooth lump of sulphur (large as thumb nail). Rub the edges of the eyelids delicately with the lump of sulphur, being careful that no part of the sulphur touches the eye. This will stimulate the growth and the tendency of the lashes, as of other hair, to grow darker when the growth is stimulated.

and diamonds which goes around the arms. With it is worn a scarf of black and white broadened silk edged with chinchilla. The hat is of black velvet near the face and black satin on top, with a large yellow osprey and now I will go straight from your gowns to your heels, for these too, have been acquiring a new color during the last week or so, and many, and, in fact, any colors, to be exact, the idea being that some telling touch and tint first introduced in the hat or the waist, or some other trimming of the costume, should be thus finally and fascinatingly emphasized with every step. Imagine a vivid scarlet heel flashing out from beneath a black or dark blue or white skirt; or, again, a glimpse of green, all the more delightful because so unexpected, or, possibly, a pair of purple heels to provide a telling contrast for a black toilette, on whose valance and broderies and the tassel roses and sapphire blues are just interwoven with this same cardinal's purple—oh, indeed, there are so many pretty possibilities in the new idea—and what I only hope it may not be speedily vulgarized and spoiled by being worn in the wrong way and with the wrong toilette. Perhaps I need hardly tell you that only the Louis heel is suited to the new scheme, the outline of the sturdy Cuban heel, as a matter of fact, is entirely out of date and consequent attention—though as far as comfort goes, the Cuban, of course, takes the first place, and is indeed almost universally worn nowadays, save for just these most extreme elegancies to the way of footwear.

Another new arrival in the way of shoes, and one which does not require so much living up to (for should it be down to?) as the ordered-beel model, is made, including the heel, in white or gray buckram, with just a small short vamp of lightly brogued patent leather, which, in addition to being a novel touch, has the further and good effect of making the foot look smaller than when it is entirely shod in one of those light leathers. Further variety is also obtainable by means of a shoe whose white or champagne or gray has a narrow edging of black brogue patent leather, which, after curving most becomingly against the foot, is continued into a continued success and monopoly of the shoe which has a complete lack of patent leather and an "up" of white or gray adobe; though, to be sure, I have nothing against this particular and popular form of footwear, which should, by all manner of means, be included in your outfit of booties. Only do, I beg of you, take advantage of the chances for further choice, and have such a variety of shoes that every dress and costume can be suitably completed.

The matter is really more important than this ever now, for short walk-

Just Think of the Big Figures in This "Bull" Durham Success!

Last year alone 352,000,000 of these homely muslin sacks of "Bull" Durham were sold.

Piled in one heap these 352,000,000 sacks would rise higher than the Eiffel Tower.

Placed end to end these 352,000,000 sacks would reach around the earth.

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO

FORTY "ROLLINGS" IN EACH 5-CENT MUSLIN SACK

Began its wonderful career fifty-two years ago.

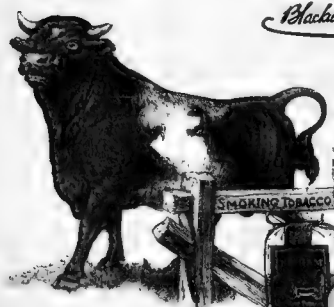

To-day it is smoked by more millions of men than all other high-grade tobaccos combined.

No other American product is sold by so many dealers in so many parts of the world.

This tremendous success—and still growing bigger—because "Bull" Durham is good—because it's pure, clean honest tobacco that men like for a lifetime. Get a sack from your dealer to-day.

AFTER THE SOUTH POLE--WHAT?

As Men Grow Bigger, Mentally, They Turn from Things That Are Little to Things That Are Great. As the Human Race Grows in Intellectual Power, It Will Turn from Study of This Tiny Earth to Contemplation of the Vast Universe in Which This Earth Is an Atom. We Have Discovered Our Two Poles, North and South. Opened Up Our Little Continents. Explored Our Distant Islands. It Is Almost Time for Human Beings to Begin the Study of REALITY, Which Is the Study of the Outside Universe.

Copyright, 1912, by American Zoetrope, Inc. Great Britain: Rogers Brothers.

TRY slowly, during hundreds of thousands of years, thinking human beings have crept around this planet in different directions, moving from East to West, and from North to South, EXAMINING, STUDYING, MAPPING AND TAKING POSSESSION OF THE LITTLE BALL OF EARTH UPON WHICH WE LIVE.

Within a short time one man went to the North Pole, and came back to tell us of a spot where the sun acts strangely, where, amid ice and snow, only a few strange animals live.

And then came Amundsen, to tell us that he had stood at the South Pole, another point of ice and snow and useless territory.

One after another the continents, the great islands, the mountain tops and the depths of the seas have been explored by curious man, driven by ambition and restlessness.

The forests, the mines under the ocean, the veins of coal, the streams of oil below the surface, the lakes and the rivers, are mapped and known and "owned" by man.

We know our little earth, as the man in the suburbs knows his little back yard and his little front yard.

We travel under the water and on the water, we are beginning to fly in the air, we live, as we choose, the lives of birds and of fishes. Man rules above the earth, below the water, or on the earth's surface.

There is little more for us to know about THIS earth.

And this picture of the explorer at the South Pole, gazing out at the heavens with nothing much left to discover here below, is a picture of humanity as it will be soon.

The artist, to make his point clear, shows you the Pole hunter, looking at Mars, magnified vastly, with the canals showing, and our other neighbor planets.

The great telescopes, the imagination and scientific, precise knowledge of man magnify the planets and tell us truths about them more vividly than any exaggerated picture could do.

→ you realize, as you live on this little earth, sitting at your desk writing, going out in the fields laboring, entering your factory and doing your share, that the earth in reality is not your REAL home?

You are the inhabitant of all space; you are interested in the entire universe.

As you sail through infinite space on this earth you are like the sailor crossing the ocean on his ship.

The ship is not his WHOLE world. He is interested in the ocean through which he sails, interested in the land toward which he is going, in the islands as he passes them.

And you, sailing through limitless space, through endless time, on this little ship, the earth, are in reality, interested in the planet

ONLY AS THE SAILOR IS INTERESTED IN THE SHIP.

YOUR REAL INTEREST, YOUR REAL HOME, IS THE GREAT UNIVERSE, THE MARVELLOUS AND OVERWHELMING AREA OF SUNS AND PLANETS, OF COMETS AND NEBULAE, THE WONDERS AND THE POWER THAT SURROUND YOU.

It is hard to make the ignorant peasant feel that anything is more important than the field in which he digs.

It is hard to make the savage take his thought away from the forest in which he finds prey, or the hut in which he finds shelter.

Yet we know that if the peasant were broader in mind, if the savage were civilized, the single field or the tangled forest could not bound his interest.

So it is with us earth dwellers. We are peasants and savages, only half civilized, only just beginning to realize what a magnificent thing it is to be a citizen of the whole universe, to belong to a race that can measure and can weigh the distant planets and suns.

It is hard for us to get our minds off this little earth, this little back yard in which we live.

Yet we know that real life, real intellectual freedom, will be found in contemplation of that which is infinite, endless, without beginning and without end.

Every schoolboy is interested in Alexander the Great, whose mind took the whole earth as a field of labor. Such a man as Alexander, starting out to a conquest of the earth, is more stimulating to the imagination than the dull stay-at-home cultivating his little plot of ground.

What Alexander was to the stay-at-home so is the man interested in universal things compared to the man whose interests are limited to this little earth.

Already we can send a telegraph message around our planet SEVEN TIMES IN ONE SECOND. That is the possibility of electrical transmission already conquered by man.

A man's body can be transported around the earth with our present defective system of transportation IN A LITTLE MORE THAN FORTY DAYS.

Flying machines, before children now born shall have died, will take men around this planet in a week. And eventually men will go around the earth as rapidly as the sun now SEEMS to go.

Those that are living will circle the globe in a time shorter than that which Jefferson occupied in going from his home to Washington.

Our earth has become A LITTLE EARTH because our race has become to some extent at least a great and conquering race.

You may be sure that in the future, not distant, human beings will be confined intellectually to this earth no longer. We shall not, as now, have a FEW astronomers and a few telescopes devoted to the study of the heavens. That study will be the study of all intelligent mankind.

Once—only a few generations back—foreign countries were explored and investigated only by a few individual travellers.

They came back to tell the wondering crowds what they had seen.

Now everybody travels—everybody able to travel, at least. Tens of thousands go to Europe from America. Millions of people go about on the continents from one country to another. We have all become PHYSICAL travellers on this planet.

Soon we shall all become INTELLECTUAL travellers throughout the entire universe.

And the man so dull as to limit his interest to this planet will be considered a being unworthy of intelligent friendship or association.

Teach your children to interest themselves in the real world, which is the great world outside of us. Interest them in astronomy. Make them understand the motions of the suns and the planets, acquaint them at least with the simpler wonders of that universe which should occupy their minds when they reach maturity.

Try to make them think intelligently in connection with great numbers and vast distances.

In an article by Professor Larkin, recently published in this newspaper, an effort was made to give to readers some idea of the vastness of space and the smallness of that which we consider great.

Suppose you took a ring three inches in diameter and put in the centre of it a little fragment of a diamond one-seventy-first of an inch in width, then walked away about nine miles. The three-inch ring with the little bit of diamond in the middle would look to you at a distance of nine miles as our solar orbit with the bright little sun in the middle of it would look to an astronomer gazing at us from the great star Sirius, that we call the Dog Star.

Our solar system seems to us gigantic—and indeed it IS gigantic.

The ring which our planet makes around the sun every year is 186,000,000 miles in diameter; yet seen from the Dog Star that gigantic ring looks as small as a little ring three inches in diameter would look to you if it were placed nine miles away from you.

Our sun is one of billions of great suns that travel through space on mysterious errands, some of them single, some of them double and triple suns. All of them have their planets travelling with them, and the planets have their satellites, as we have our one moon, and as others of the planets in our system have numerous moons.

Each of these suns has a vast exclusive territory in space, inhabited only by its solar family, except for the visits of comets and lost flying fragments. When you get outside of our own little family in space, away from our sun with its planets, you must travel twenty-five billions of miles before you come to the nearest sun, which is called Alpha Centauri.

Light travels at the rate of 186,400 miles a second. Yet it takes the light more than four years to come from the nearest sun to our solar system. If we could hear the sound of a cannon fired from that nearest sun, IT WOULD TAKE THREE MILLION YEARS FOR THE SOUND TO TRAVEL FROM THAT SUN TO OUR PLANET. And express train, such as we have on this earth, travelling at the rate of thirty-seven miles an hour, would have to travel steadily for seventy-five millions of years to come from Alpha Centauri to Grand Central Station in New York City.

Some will say that human beings are not interested in such questions, in such inconceivable distances, BUT THEY ARE INTERESTED. AS MANY OF THEM AS ARE INTELLIGENT BEINGS. And the entire race will soon be interested in these vast distances, these vast problems, these magnificent realms of power and wonderful beauty.

The natives of a little, lost village in some valley of the Himalayas are not interested in our western country. They are not interested in Paris, in London, in the telescope or the flying machine. They are interested only in their little village, their narrow streets, their few goats, their marauding expeditions, their miserable, superstitious religion, which teaches them that they alone are important.

Real human beings inhabiting this planet are not like the half-savage inhabitant of an Asiatic village. We are interested, all of us, in everything upon this earth.

Before long, like the man in this picture, we shall be sitting, looking away from this earth, looking out into the infinite spaces, backward through time that never began, forward through time that shall never end. We shall realize that our possibilities are unlimited, that when this little earth ends and disappears, as our bodies end and disappear, still the mind, the power of thought, will continue, and in other solar systems, on other planets, in endless time and endless space, continue the work of the intellect—the only work that is worth while.

Our sun is a million times bigger than the planet on which we live.

And within sight of us there exists a sun one million times bigger than our own sun.

And all of these gigantic suns and planets and comets are held in their paths, kept swinging on mighty journeys, by the eternal power of law and justice.

That alone is worth the study of an intellectual man.

DIX—No, and I didn't get in without my hearing her either.

BIX—My wife is very methodical. She wants to know where everything is kept.

DIX—No, I don't know. I don't even want to know where my late hours are kept.

BIX—Do you know I'm glad I met your wife; she seemed to me to have a lot of sense.

DIX—Did she? I wish you'd met her sooner.

BIX—Did she? I wish you'd give me a question to ask your cousin?

DIX—No, he's married her, and she says he pays her no attention to whatever. By the way, I suppose you and your wife attended the big reception the other night?

DIX—Yes, of course.

BIX—And you let that stop you?

DIX—Well, you see she put questions in what she seemed to me to be sure to discover it until too late.

BIX—How long has your cook been with you?

DIX—This is the second year of her reign.

BIX—How can that fellow Bulper be a nerve.

DIX—He is.

BIX—I told him I was going to sue him for the ten dollars he had taken me to give him ten times and sue me for the twenty.

DIX—You're in luck. My wife is always wanting to sue people.

BIX—Do you have much trouble with your auto?

DIX—No, I couldn't have more trouble if it was married to the blamed thing.

BIX—I'm bothered a good deal with my cellar lately. Can't you get me a good cellar?

DIX—"In the guested chamber, of course."

ALX—"But, well, here's another. Who is the patron saint of music?"

DIX—"If you mean ragtime, it's St. Vitrus."

ALX—"If you mean music in its vaudeville sense, did you ever have any desire to go upon the stage?"

DIX—"Yes, kind of. I was a little actor."

ALX—"Isn't that Watson and his gang? I got by."

DIX—"That woman's a brunette. I understand he died."

ALX—"He did, but she died."

DIX—"I say, old man, have you a spare car for me?"

ALX—"Certainly. But I thought you were going to take the car."

DIX—"So I am, but not too abruptly. I've already taken one."

ALX—"Are you going to raise anything on your place this Summer?"

DIX—"No, the mortgage. As for garden truck, Nevermore! Of course, you know Pops Blix."

ALX—"Pops Blix? What's he?"

DIX—"What's the matter with him! Say, Blix, I know why your eyes are weak."

ALX—"Why?"

DIX—"Because they are in a weak place."

ALX—"Well, I'll be getting along now. Going to take in some motion pictures this afternoon."

DIX—"Come home with me. I've got to move six from the house."

Hector's Ailment.

THE bride felt so much alone while hubby was at business that he brought home, a dog one day, which they named Hector. It was not long before Hector became so beloved that when he was stricken with a strange ailment and was sent to the veterinary for treatment, instructions were given to telegraph at once his condition, whether for better or worse.

Finally the anxiously awaited message came.

"Trouble with your dog Hector," it read, "has been discovered. He is a mother."

"DIDN'T I limit you to one moderate drink a day?" asked the doctor, angrily.

"Don't say a word, doc," moaned the patient. "It werr all on account of thot Dan Gillis. After Old'd refused th' second round, Dan says, 'Tim, me b'y, what's th' harm in takin' th' drink yez wuz goin' t' take to-morrow, an' havin' it wid us right now!'

WHEN Scheffel was staying in Italy for the benefit of his health he received from his friend in Germany an unfranked letter, containing nothing but the words: "I am well. With best regards, Yours, etc." Annoyed at having to pay double postage for such an insignificant piece of news, the poet determined to serve his friend out. He procured a large stone of immense weight, packed it in a box, and sent it to his correspondent. The latter, in belief that the contents of the parcel were valuable, gladly paid the heavy charge for carriage, opened the box, and found to his horror nothing but an ordinary stone bearing a label with the words: "I am well."

MIKE McGuire had taken his friend Fitzgerald for a visit to Little Hungary. Suddenly Fitz's eyes became glued to a sign above the table:

"Mike," he whispered.
 "What?"
 "O'll make that dago serve me Hungarian goulash, Irish style, or know th' reason why!"

JOHN DREW has always been noted for his clever retorts. His latest, which is credited with having occurred in a Broadway barber shop, somewhat dumfounded the tonsorial artist.

Mrs. Drew has very fine and silky brown hair. It looks a little thin when it is uncombed, but properly arranged it shows itself to be very thick and comely.

As the barber laid his moist, cool palm on the actor's skull, he said:

"You are somewhat bald, sir. Have you tried our special tonic?"

"Yes," returned Mr. Drew. "But that wasn't what made my hair fall out."

UP on West Ninety-eighth street there lives a young woman who, while not a conspicuous beauty, is by no means as homely as she affects to believe. A young man had been devoting much of his time to her, and she had given him reason to think that his society pleased her. The other evening he said:

She caught her breath, and then answered in a low tone:

SON at dinner gazing at his father's face suddenly queries:
 "Say, Pa, what makes . . . so dreadful red?"
 "The east wind, my boy," he roared the old man with gruff haste. "Pass the jug o' beer and don't talk so much."
 "Yes, Tommy, pass your father the east wind, and be careful not to spill any on the cloth!"

A Thrilling Account of the Hunter Family Hunting a Summer Resort

DEVELOPING ALIEN

OF COURSE when Hunter said he preferred the beach, Mrs. Hunter dragged him to the mountains, where the guests called her mountain climbing dress a Tense Tommy costume, whereupon they hurried to a beach. There a clam canner was in such bad odor they fled to a farm, where bees, poison ivy and fells mephitis drove them to Lake Winnememnie. At this charming spot a peroxide widow spoiled the scenery for Mrs. Hunter, who then resorted to camping out, but the rain and the floods came and they were forced to the fashionable Hotelletta. But when Hunter got too popular teaching the girls to swim, Mrs. Hunter decided to try a bungalow.

"N^OW, isn't this just too cute!" exclaimed Mrs. Hunter as, with her husband and son, she arrived at Blaphurst, the celebrated bug-slaying colony.

"There you go again, complaining before you have been here a minute. Never mind all that chatter; take these bags into the house, you have the keys; and bring the trunks in. I have paid the driver."

Hunter got the bungalow door open and tried to get one of the trunks in. It wouldn't go through the door.

Mrs. Hunter tossed her head angrily, walked up to the trunk, turned it over edgewise and dragged it through the door. Then she turned and gave her husband the same sort of look Taft might have given Roosevelt the day after the Chicago con-

Half an hour later she tidied up the big living room and began unpacking boxes of things she had bought.

hunter went out back of the bungalow, found an axe and worked hard for a long while, chopping up wood then he staggered into the little kitchen with a towering armful and dropped it clattering to the floor because he couldn't locate a woodbox.

"What do you mean, Willie?" asked his mother.
 "What's the wood good for?" insisted little Willie.
 "What do we usually chop up wood for?"— Hunter began angrily when Mrs. Hunter looked about, and

"What on earth do we want of that wood? Look there's no stove here, it's a gas range!"

"Well, of all tho' —"

But harmony was restored an hour later when the

"This is so (slap) restful," said Mrs. Hunter, killing a mosquito that was biting its monogram on her plump wrist.

"Just the man I want (slap) to see!" said Hunter. "Look here, Mr. Jinks, why can't we have this veranda going to have my men do it to-day, but some of you've gone and chopped 'em all up to splinters. What's the big idea for that? Just deviltry I suppose?"

"Why—er—was—were those—I thought"—

I LOVE EVERY LASH IN YOUR EYES.

A fair young girl was riding in a fast express one day,
She had come toward New York City, from Troy so far away.
She stuck her head outside the car to get a breath of air,
But as the wind was blowing fierce it blew out half her hair.
Into her lovely eyes that day some eyelashes did go;
Her sweetheart then did say to her in accents soft and low:

I love every lash in your eyes,
Your eyes so dark brown and so good;
Them lashes I certainly prize,
I would not take them out if I could.
Keep them there to remember me by,
Each one of them winkers I prize.
I know that they hurt, but remember, dear Gert

"That's very reasonable," said the song publisher. "I'll give you ten cash money."

WHO THE MISS AD TAKERS ARE

ONE is Dora Davenport of Dorchester. Another is Frances Folger of Hingham, and the third is Lillian Lawson of Leighton. They take Help Wanted Ads and other Want Ads over the phone from all kinds of business houses. They are part of the Boston AMERICAN's quick service Want Ad system. When a business man wants Help all he has to do is call Miss Ad Taker, 1800 Main, and she will immediately put his ad in the AMERICAN. He is sure to get what he wants before the day is over. All kinds of business people telephone during the day. People with Real Estate to sell, Apartments to let, Automobiles to sell, etc., etc., "will ads in the Want Ad column of the AMERICAN have brought wonderful results inside of 24 hours.

If you will phone your ad before 11 o'clock in the morning it appears in all of the later big editions.

If you find Miss Ad Taker at Revere Beach, Nantasket or the White City today be sure and have a receipt for an AMERICAN Want Ad for any day this past week. You will get an additional prize.

These Want Ad receipts may be obtained at the AMERICAN office. If you have a room to let, a house or apartment to rent, if you want boarders, if you need a situation, if you want to sell or trade a sewing machine or bicycle, if you want to buy or sell a dog or cat, a horse or boat, you can do it through Want Ad of the AMERICAN. Surely one of these numerous headings under which Want Ads are published must interest you. Just insert a small ad and you will get a receipt which will entitle you to the additional prize if you capture Miss Ad Taker.

THIS IS HOW YOU DO IT!

MISS AD TAKER of the Boston AMERICAN will be in the following places on Monday next between the hours of 2 and 5 P. M.

She will stroll along the sidewalk of the shopping and amusement side of the Revere Beach. She will not cross the drive nor be on the sand nor on the beach side of the Fulkard at any time. You cannot capture her here. You must get her on the sidewalk, that starts at Condit's and runs along the amusement places to Revere street. Remember this, she will not cross the automobile drive.

In Worcester she will stroll about the White City and can be captured anywhere within the limits of the place.

At Nantasket she will be on the boardwalk from the Roller Coaster through to the end of the Bath House or she may be in Paragon Park or on the sidewalk from Paragon Park to the entrance to the Boat Landing. She will not be on the drive, Nantasket avenue, nor can she be captured there.

The person who identifies Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN must have in his or her hand, in plain sight, a copy of today's Sunday AMERICAN, and shall say to her while she walks the streets or places mentioned. "You are Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN." The first man, woman or child who identifies her, as directed, will receive a Boston AMERICAN order for $100 in gold.

You may know Miss Ad Taker by the photograph published on this page. She may wear a plain hat. She will carry a green parasol. Don't give up the search if you do not see her at first. Search the amusement places and the restaurants. She may be in one of them. In addition to these big prizes $200 more will be awarded in these proportions: $100 at Revere Beach, $50 at Nantasket, and $50 at the White City.

To receive one of these added prizes you must have in your possession a receipt for a Boston AMERICAN want ad for any day last week or for today.

If you capture Miss Ad Taker in the manner directed you receive $100.

If you capture her and hold a receipt for a Boston AMERICAN want ad, as required, you get $50 addition at the White City, Worcester, or at Nantasket. At Revere Beach you will get $100 extra. Remember, two big prizes in each place. You can win them both.

Want Ad receipts may be obtained at the AMERICAN office, or at any want ad agency or by mail. If you have a room to let, a house or apartment to rent, if you want boarders, if you need a situation, if you want to sell or trade a sewing machine or bicycle, if you want to buy or sell a dog or cat, you can do it through the Want Ads of the Boston AMERICAN.

One of these numerous headings under which Want Ads are published must interest you. Just insert a small ad and you will get a receipt which will entitle you to the additional cash prize if your observation is keen enough to capture Miss Ad Taker.

PILGRIMS SCORE 10-3, MATTHEW IN 3RD

SENATE VOTES TO PROBE THE PENROSE CHARGES

PENROSE IS HELPED BY FOLLETT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The Pilgrims scored a 10-3 victory over the Mattheus in the first round of the National Tennis Championships today. The Pilgrims, who were coached by the late John H. Patterson, were led by the late John H. Patterson, who was the first to win the title. The Pilgrims were coached by the late John H. Patterson, who was the first to win the title. The Pilgrims were coached by the late John H. Patterson, who was the first to win the title.

"If Roosevelt, Archbold and Penrose Do Not Tell ALL Truth as to Oil Funds, I Will."—W. R. HEARST.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—I have read in the foreign papers accounts of the explanation that senator Penrose has given of his receipt of a certificate of deposit for $25,000 from the Standard Oil Company. I have also read Senator Penrose's statement of the purpose for which this secret certificate of deposit was intended and the use to which this sum of money and other sums of money from the Standard Oil Company were put. Senator Penrose's explanation is not quite accurate. His statement is not altogether truthful. He is in part saying what is true and in part saying what is false.

"I'LL TELL ALL," SAYS ROOSEVELT IN REPLY TO HEARST'S CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The Pilgrims scored a 10-3 victory over the Mattheus in the first round of the National Tennis Championships today. The Pilgrims, who were coached by the late John H. Patterson, were led by the late John H. Patterson, who was the first to win the title. The Pilgrims were coached by the late John H. Patterson, who was the first to win the title. The Pilgrims were coached by the late John H. Patterson, who was the first to win the title.

I have the documents to prove my assertion. Senator Penrose should take warning of the fate of Senator Foraker and the predicament of that gentleman when he attempted to explain falsely the reason for which his certificates of deposit from Mr. Archbold were received. I was able to produce promptly the documents which showed that Senator Foraker was not speaking the truth, and that the certificates were received for other purposes than the ones stated by him.

Senator Penrose should also remember the difficulty into which Mr. Archbold got himself by making false statements in regard to some of the letters published incriminating certain Pennsylvania judges. Mr. Archbold and that he had interested himself in the selection of those judges without their knowledge. I thereupon produced more letters of Mr. Archbold's in which the judges were shown to have requested him to interest himself in their behalf.

I advise Senator Penrose, therefore, to adhere to the exact facts and to speak the whole truth, for the whole truth will surely be brought out in the present series of articles now appearing in my magazine.

The September issue is already on the press and I cannot after that to include a reply to Senator Penrose, but in the October issue I shall deal with Senator Penrose's use of the Standard Oil Company and with Mr. Roosevelt's relations with the Standard Oil Company and their agents. I shall, moreover, not make any statements that are not substantiated by documentary evidence.

It is a notable fact that Senator Penrose confirms his statements to allegations unsupported by legal proof. It is also worthy of note that Mr. Archbold does not produce any of the interesting documents that he has in his possession to establish the truth of his utterances. He quotes Mr. Bliss, who is no longer there to question the accuracy of his statements, but he does not produce any letters to or from Mr. Bliss, to or from Senator Penrose, to or from Mr. Babcock, or to or from Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Archbold's word needs documentary support. That fact has been proven heretofore, and Mr. Archbold has already been confronted by the evidence of his own letters and those of his agents and confederates in political life and public plunder.

As a matter of fact, various Republican campaign committees solicited Standard Oil money and accepted Standard Oil money and employed Standard Oil money in the campaign of 1904, and various Democrats received Standard Oil money then and later.

Mr. Archbold has told part of the truth, but not all of it. Let him tell all of it and produce the interesting documents that encumber his files.

Mr. Roosevelt, too, should tell of the visits of Mr. Rogers and Mr. Archbold to him in Washington, of Mr. Sibley's activity in bringing about these meetings, of the "perfect understanding" that existed and various other matters of interest and importance to the nation. All of these things will appear in due time, and Mr. Roosevelt might as well relate them now.

It must be said of Mr. Roosevelt, however, that, although he received the financial and political support of the Standard Oil Company, he repudiated that institution after he was elected.

In the same manner Mr. Wilson received the financial and political support of Senator Smith of New Jersey and repudiated him after election.

Mr. Roosevelt can boast of a belated honesty, so why not be completely frank with the public and tell them the whole truth? Why should not Senator Penrose and Mr. Archbold and Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Sibley all tell the whole truth, particularly when they can be so confidently assured that if they do not, I will.

KING NICHOLAS OF MONTENEGRO ISSUES WAR ORDER TO ARMY

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 25. (Special Telegram.)—King Nicholas of Montenegro has issued a war order to his army, and a declaration of war against Turkey is believed to be imminent. The two nations are already at odds as the king war had actually been formally declared. Fighting on the frontier is raging, and the losses of the Montenegrins have been very heavy.

Replying to protests from King of Serbia, and demanding the cessation of the Turkish troops from the frontier, the king has ordered that the Turkish army should be driven back to the frontier. Investigation is being made into the guilty persons involved.

CHAPTER VIII
The New Filene Store

Widening a Path That Was True From the Beginning

THE NEW STORE and the old are linked to the thing which has made them possible and without which neither could exist.

That is scientific specialization—performance of a few things well—then better than the average—finally in the best possible way.

The founder of this business, in a modest but straightforward way, set the standard for what has been accomplished.

Toward the eventuation of his ideals we of the present day have banded our energies.

First of all we have discovered and developed methods impossible to the house which spreads its functions over all the lands and all the seas of merchandising.

The theory of specialization has been developed until that specialization has become almost an exact science with us.

New and better markets have opened. New and better methods of selling have appeared.

When right markets have not opened we have created them. When right selling methods have not appeared we have evolved them.

Wherein the public has benefited primarily and we relatively.

And by reason of which the new building was made possible and is become imperative.

Scientific specialization in the new store reaches this outpost:

So far as is possible every group of upstairs merchandise will have its own enclosed shop with its own shop windows, looking out upon quaint little streets.

We are sure these shops will appeal to women and men who desire some degree of leisure and privacy when shopping.

"Progress provides its own obstacles."

The path has not always been smooth. We have made mistakes costly to remedy.

But by keeping in mind steadfastly the aim of best possible service under best possible conditions for employees as well as customers—

By counting it our duty toward the community to assist in minimizing cost of living—

By holding as our most precious possession the confidence of the people of New England—

We have pursued the policies laid down by the founder and have achieved success in accord with our fidelity to those policies.

Though we are about to move into a new building providing great physical expansion;

Though we shall add to our organization a veritable world of shops for the outfitting and comfort of men and boys;

Though we shall enlarge our present service for women, misses, girls and children to an extent they may not anticipate;

Though we shall go into the matter of personal service in a manner unique if not daring;

The spirit of the old Filene store shall pertain in the new.

And the sum of the new store accomplishment may be traced to the principles fixed in the old.

Archbold Tells Frankly How He Tried to Buy a President

Uncle Trusty

By F. Oppen

THE secrets of the Standard Oil check-book which Hearst's Magazine has been disclosing for several months—and which we hope it will continue to disclose—are epoch-making.

They have furnished legal proof of political practices which everybody knew, but which nobody has been able to prove hitherto.

They have shown that in the traffic in men's souls, in buying public men or legislation or in paying for immunity, the criminal trusts asked not what party a "statesman" belonged to, but only what price he asked for services to the trust.

The first instalment of the Archbold letters read by Mr. Hearst four years ago showed how strictly non-partisan the Standard Oil Trust was. It had bought the chief United States Senator in President Taft's own State, who largely controlled legislation affecting corporations in the United States Senate. It bought at the same time the man closest to Mr. Bryan and most active in his campaign.

The one was a Republican and the other was a Democrat. The criminal trust did not at all object to or approve the politics of either. It required only strict fidelity to the criminal trust on the part of both.

Now the whole country is stirred by the particular instalment of the Archbold letters which reveals the relation of the Standard Oil Company to the present Republican leader in the United States Senate and to the Roosevelt campaign of 1904.

Mr. Cortelyou, who was the chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee at that time, has recently testified before the Senate Committee that the Standard Oil Company made no contribution to the campaign fund of 1904. And if it had not been for the publication in Hearst's Magazine the matter would have rested there. Nothing more would have been said or done.

But the publicity in the August Hearst's Magazine of Mr. Penrose's financial dealings with Mr. Archbold has compelled Mr. Penrose to fight for any shred or patch of respectability that can be saved from his tattered toga. He has striven to show—and has been able to show—that at least the larger part of the $125,000 that he had to account for did not go into his private pocket.

Mr. Archbold says that when he handed $100,000 of the money to Mr. Bliss he told him—in accordance with the habit of the Standard Oil Board of Directors who had voted the money—that he did not want to give the money unless the fact of the assistance was known to the "powers that be," that is to say, as Mr. Archbold repeatedly explained, unless the transaction "was thoroughly approved and thoroughly appreciated" by Mr. Roosevelt.

The Standard Oil Trust does not fling its money to the birds. When it pays for political favors it wishes to know that it will get what it pays for.

That Archbold gave $100,000 to the Republican campaign fund in 1904 cannot be doubted in view of Archbold's testimony, Penrose's testimony, and the statement in President Roosevelt's letter to Chairman Cortelyou, dated October 26, 1904, saying: "I have just been informed that the Standard Oil people have contributed $100,000 to our campaign fund. * * * If true I must ask you to direct that the money be returned forthwith."

There are only three persons living whose testimony is now admissible. H. H. Rogers, of the Standard Oil, knew, but is dead. Cornelius N. Bliss, the Republican treasurer, knew, but is dead. The three living witnesses are Colonel Roosevelt, John D. Archbold and George B. Cortelyou.

Mr. Archbold is the head of a corporation which has been convicted of criminal practices by the unanimous judgment of the Circuit Court and of the nine judges of the U. S. Supreme Court. The trust was a felon. If the guilt of the criminal trust was personal, and all guilt is said to be personal, it would attach to its president, and then Mr. Archbold's testimony would not be accepted without corroboration; it would be discredited by his bad character.

But Mr. Archbold was not convicted as an individual, but only as a corporation, so that his testimony is admissible.

Mr. Cortelyou who has said that he is out of politics forever, has no motive to conceal the truth and has a high character for ability and veracity. He says that Colonel Roosevelt's version is true. The letters of Colonel Roosevelt, the other witnesses, speak for themselves.

Archbold appeared in Washington as a voluntary witness to back up the Standard Oil agent, Senator Penrose, alias "Fanning," in his testimony and to show his extreme hatred of Colonel Roosevelt.

The power is not vouchsafed to us to penetrate the mysteries of the Roosevelt mind to find the real motive which prompted his relentless warfare against the Standard Oil. Prosecute it, or persecute it, he certainly did.

He had it indicted nineteen times in Illinois in 1906, ten times in New York in 1907. He had it fined $25,000 in Indiana for rebating, and when the judgment was reversed President Roosevelt denounced it as "a gross miscarriage of justice." Finally Mr. Roosevelt had the Standard Oil Trust sued under the Anti-Trust act, and a decree of dissolution was entered against it.

Archbold declares boldly that Roosevelt did all these things because the Standard Oil refused to give the additional $150,000 Treasurer Bliss asked for. To the Standard Oil apparently the only question of importance about any statesman is, "What is his price?" Archbold states under oath his belief that $150,000 was President Roosevelt's price.

But has Archbold forgotten that President Roosevelt got $250,000 from Mr. Harriman one month after Treasurer Bliss got only $100,000 from Archbold, and that this did not prevent Colonel Roosevelt from attacking Harriman a little later and calling him an undesirable citizen?

Archbold evidently regards his purchase of statesmen with smug satisfaction. His testimony reminds us of the colossal vanity attributed to great criminals. Note this passage:

"Senators Scott and Elkins, too, were inclined to give us credit for going in to West Virginia," said Mr. Archbold, "with enough Republicans to turn the tide from the Democracy to the Republican party in that State."

Mr. Archbold states under oath his belief that for $150,000 more he could have bought President Roosevelt. Mr. Harriman gave $250,000 and did not buy him.

Nothing but good can come of this lurid light into the dark places of political. Those who have been the investigators of the political corruption that has gone so far to make laws a marketable commodity and thus to sap the foundations of government, will be revealed in their true character. On the other hand, those who have been swept along by the tide of evil customs, but have themselves neither instigated the evils nor profited by them, will receive such measure of exculpation as they deserve.

There can be no doubt, for example, that such a man as the late Cornelius N. Bliss was caught in the swirl of a system that was not of the color of his own character. He was a man of high honor and delicate conscience.

One of the most interesting things brought out in the Archbold testimony is the explanation of the fact that the flood of certificates of deposits, as revealed by the letters printed in Hearst's Magazine, was confined to the venal statesmen of Pennsylvania and Ohio. The explanation is that—according to Mr. Archbold's own statement—his own personal political jurisdiction was confined to those two States.

"William, you and Theodore as the Rival Friends of the Working Man ought to make a hit! And those are a couple of nice little band wagons, but the seats seem to be awfully empty so far! I can't pay much attention to you just now, I'm so busy taking care of these sick friends of mine! It looks now as if they may all have to go to jail! And just as business was getting so good, too! Can you beat it?"

Courtesy in Business

By ELBERT HUBBARD

WE are ruled by our habits. First we form our habits, and then our habits form us.

We are what we are on account of what we have thought, said or done. After having done a thing once, there is a tendency in the brain to do it again. If continued, we get the habit; that is, we do the thing without thinking. Just as a matter of course. Thus does habit become second nature.

"What kind of people will we be in Elysium?" they asked Hercules four hundred years before Christ. And his answer was: "You will be the same kind of people you are today, because this life is a preparation for the next, just as today is a preparation for tomorrow."

Any man with the grouch habit, the "poker" habit, the frown habit, the cigarette habit, the dope habit, the booze habit, is on the ground; and he himself is swabbing the slide. Also, there is a sort of general disposition on the part of everybody to give him a push down the road to Davy Jones' locker.

In the heart of all of us is the tendency to pass back everything that is handed us. Once there was a man who said, "If I had been around that day when the Creator was making the world I would have made a few suggestions."

Courtesy, kindness, good-will, generosity, liberality, are all catches.

"I would have made good health-catching instead of bad."

That is just where the critic lapses. The fact is, good health is catching. All good things are catching.

If a man smiles, waves his hand at you as you walk down the street in the morning, you wave your hand back and smile in return unconsciously, and often one little experience like this will pay for you the day joyously.

Two people who smile, generously, liberality, are all catches.

Nothing is so contagious as a smile. Try it on the first man you see.

Chat try bread upon the waters and it shall return after many days buttered, and sometimes jam on it.

The advantage and benefit of telephone courtesy is beyond computation.

But the use of the telephone requires a certain amount of patience. You must have faith that the man at the other end of the line has something to tell you that is worth saying.

In the big central telephone office operators are selected with especial care as to their voices. A girl may have brilliant ability, but if she has a voice that screams, creaks or purrs, to that degree she is incompetent either as a telephone operator or as a saleswoman.

To speak distinctly and pleasantly is a fine art. A good speaking voice is not so much a matter of training as it is of right thinking. A person who thinks well of himself and of other people has a voice that assures. People who are anxious, nervous, irritated, harassed, tired, reveal impatience in their tones.

Any one who uses the telephone, be he operator or patron, artist or peasant, should practice telephone courtesy.

Taking Your Best Manners and Impulses with You on Your Vacation

Copyright, 1912, by American Journal Company

If you are going away from your friends or your family for a vacation, take your very best manners with you. Kindness and sweetest impulses with you.

There is no benefit in a change of scene or results from labor if ill temper, nervousness, irritability and fault-finding rule the mental domain.

All benefit which comes to us from home is with us.

The woman who sits at home in a happy, cheerful state of mind, delighted with small pleasures and bent on making everything about her better for her companionship, will gain more benefit from her vacation than one who goes touring in motor cars, sailing in yachts, or enjoying in great hotels, all the time complaining of her surroundings and her associates and finding fault with people and things.

A man may far better refuse to go away on a journey than to go and cast a pall of gloom over his companions by indulging his most unsuitable and disagreeable habits.

A change of scene and thought will wear out the mind and weary the body, but it will not change the man being who can possibly arrange such an event.

Not only but twice each year, should every busy worker in the physical or mental domain of physics, labor, get away from his surroundings and among new people or alone with Nature.

The vehicle which rolls continually over one track wears out. So one kind of thought wears out in the mind, and the mind wears out in the body, and the body wears out in the soul, and the soul wears out in the body.

Women, in lonely country places, who have few diversions, and who go to sleep with the mind weary and the body tired, find that they breathe fresh food, air, and sunlight, and the city woman of fashion, once they have no variety of mental food and dwell on a monotonous level of unchanging views.

Therefore, vacations and little journeys and stints and trips go to be recommended as hearty treatments and as a means of preventing as well as curing for mental and physical maladies.

And they are highly successful in any line of endeavor, since they enlarge the vision and increase the mind's capacity.

But none of the benefits result from vacations if the mind is filled with discontent, ill temper and carping criticism.

A man was urged by his wife to take a week's vacation with her. He went with his wife, but he was not so cheerful, and when his wife fell ill he said he knew something of the kind would happen, not realizing that his state of mind was one which would attract and produce misfortune.

For a student who has been bad he remained at home or quietly insisted upon going to the country.

Two people may leave a palatial and luxurious home and go into the discomforts of a small hotel room or a farm house and yet they may find delight and benefit out of it in the change if they are good comrades, real friends or tender lovers.

The delicate and beautiful are all results of mental conditions: an unselfish desire to please your associates, happiness in seeing others enjoy life, satisfaction in giving the best of life in every situation.

And in the intimate family life and boarding house and hotel life, necessitates the unpleasant traits and characteristics stand for prominently before the eyes. Therefore, before you go away on your vacation it is well to brush up your manners, to take a fresh hold of your will power and to turn your vacation into a time so that your family and your friends and the strangers you will meet may be benefited by your companionship.

And in the end, if you will receive real benefit yourself from your vacation and return refreshed and happy and self-respecting when the outing is over.

Electric Space Waves

By EDGAR LUCIES LARKIN

FOR a number of years after the discovery of galvanic electricity, and later of magnetic and dynamic, all electricians made use of wires to convey it from place to place.

Galvanic electricity is that derived from the transformation of chemicals in common metal and cells or batteries of cells combined.

Magnetic is that produced by moving a wire in air, in front of the end, or pole, of a permanent steel magnet.

Dynamic electricity is that developed by moving wires in front of the poles of temporary soft iron magnets, with the important additional point of using the electricity thus secured to increase the magnetism in the mass of soft iron.

Electricity is developed by friction and is machines for this purpose the electricity is called static. These machines have coils of metal on the terminals, and when electricity is sent on in this beyond the capacity of the atoms to store more, a high pressure discharge occurs through air between, miniature lightning is seen, and a sharp report is heard.

This means again between terminals is known as the air gap. Hertz made one of the new historic discoveries of the world. He took a wire, put little knobs, one on each end, and bent it into almost a complete circle, leaving a gap between the knobs.

When a static machine was in action, flashing sparks between its knobs, he caught his circle of wire around the room until finally he came to a place where his knobs began to flash, in tune with the machine discharges, to "break down the air," and that a passage through it for air, pure air, is a hot conductor. The pressure in the machine is increased by means of condensers, devices of various kinds in the circuit.

Before Hertz, however, the well known push button London far had been in use for years.

This is a high power condenser; note the bright sparks between knobs and any applied discharge, and the convulsive effects in the muscles of the arm if one gets the benefit of the lightning.

This jar had been used a long time before one of the world's great discoveries was made—magnetism. A jar highly charged makes a sharp report, as loud as that of a revolver, in large high-potential specimens. But there are many hundreds of reports all sounding as one.

The electrician's oscillations to and fro from knob to knob, with such extreme rapidity that the flashes appear to the eye as one, and the separate reports to the ear as one sound.

These jars had been used in colleges for years before the professors were aware that one of the most valuable possessions of the human race, electric waves, were filling space all around the flapping vanes.

Little did they know that waves, electrical disturbances, carried in space in every direction with a velocity of 186,000 miles a second, were all about them, and that their old foundation stone for that now immense science, wireless telegraphy.
